HUMORS OF THE DAY.

Can't a coffin shop properly be called a bier saloon?

By CONTRACTING a disease you help to spread it. Queer, isn't it?

"I can't account for it," exclaimed the deplorable bank cashier.—Philadelphia Item.

Smoking and chewing are two evils, and ye who select the former chew the less.—Courier-Journal.

Food says he never finishes a cigar but he thinks, "Another temptation removed from the young men of America."

It is bad luck for thirteen persons to sit down together at a table, especially if there is only dinner enough for ten.

The cat is the great American puma down. If footpads were lions, cats, her nine lives would be strewn with roses.

"And what would ye want such a man as Patrick?" said Mrs. McGlone. "Ye never could thrust him out yer sight, unless ye was wild him."

What is called respectability is a great help to many men. Once they have attained it, they can put in a lie where it will do the most good.

An Indian chief in Washington went to see the Ideal Opera Company. When M. V. Whitney gave a particularly low note the chief said: "Ugh! him heap dug out."

Best is said to be the solution of many puzzling perplexities. If that's so, we'd like to solve a puzzling perplexity about three hundred and sixty-five times a year.—Courier-Journal.

An Irish gentleman, hearing of a friend having a stone coffin made for himself, exclaimed: "Be me sowl, an' that's a good idea! Shure, an' a stone coffin 'ud last a man his lifetime."

A PENNSYLVANIA boy recently swallowed a horse-shoe and without expiring, and it would have made him a little horse-shoe.—Norfolk Herald.

"Is this the front of the Capitol?" asked a newly-arrived stranger of an Anstis darkey. "No, sah; dis heah side is front an' de rear. If yer wants ter see the front yer must go around ter de back on de nigger side."—Texas Siftings.

"My son," asked a clerical parent of his hungry boy who was just in the starvation period, "if I wish you would make a study of 'Watts on the Mind.'"

"I will, pa," was the quick answer, "as soon as I have studied what's on the stomach."

Calculated to fill it: "I tell you," continued Pingree, "Brown isn't fit for the place. In fact, I don't know of a place that he is calculated to fill."

"Don't be inoperative in your remarks, Pingree," said Fogg, "you forget his stomach."

"Yes," said the injured party to the owner of the dog, "I know the dog was only in play when he hit about half a pound of flesh out of me. Certainly he was only in play!"

"And I was only in play when I took an ax and made hash of him. Only in play, sir. Nothing to get mad about."

"That your mother I'm coming to see her," said a lady to Mrs. Gibson Bigelow's little boy, who replied: "I'm glad you are coming. Mamma will be glad, too."

"How do you know your mother will be glad to see me?" asked the lady. "Because I heard her tell papa, yesterday, that nobody ever came to the house except men with bills to collect."—Anstis Siftings.

His exit. They had been a seeming coolness between the lovers. One day Family's schoolmate ventured to refer to the subject and asked her: "When did you see Charlie last?"

"Two weeks ago to-night," she replied. "Did he happen to be much altered?" "No, greatly," returned Family, "that it took all the strength of papa's new bull-dog to hold him."

LITTLE boy has been sweating, and mamma, to punish him, washed thoroughly the inside of his mouth with soap-suds, "so," as she explained to him, "clean out the naughty words." A few days later, while passing the bathroom, she saw the youngster with his face all unnailed and his mouth so full that she, exclaiming, "What's that?" all out, mamma. "Swore five times yesterday!"

The farmers of the South are unanimous in pronouncing taxed farmers a great success, while exclusive cotton planting is said to pay in the long run.—Detroit Free Press.

An aristocratic colored man, recently from New York, says he is a descendant from one of the old Nigger-buckers families.

Summer Excursions. The Illinois Central railway presents unusual attractions this season to the health and pleasure seekers.

Wolves on a Railroad.

A Toledo man, formerly of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, left a good position with a good salary on the Northern Pacific, and returned to Toledo to take the chances of getting for less money.

When pressed for his reasons for coming back, he rather reluctantly told the following tale:

He said that as soon as he got his train started on his run, and one night he was at a certain station was side-tracked for a train that was following him.

He at a certain station was side-tracked for a train that was following him. He at a certain station was side-tracked for a train that was following him.

A Peculiar View of the Question.

It is refreshing to hear of a genuine conversation, if it be from darkness to light, especially when it is speedy and complete.

A few years ago a friend of mine was taking a country walk with a friend, a stranger, when the latter suddenly wheeled round his face toward home, with the remark: "Let us go back, I'm tired; was called up in the middle of the night to baptize a child that was dying."

"Were you in time?" asked my friend. "Just," was the reply, "another half minute and I should have been late."

"And if you had been, what then?" "Why, then, I suppose the poor little thing would have been lost."

"Eternally?" "Well, yes, according to our belief," said I, "of what sort of boots you wear?" said my friend.

"Boots? Elastic-side, always." "Now, suppose you were faced, and they had taken two minutes to put on, the child would have been dead, and—lost eternally, say?"

"That's a peculiar view of the question; and I must think over my position," said my friend, "I have thought that matter over and must alter my view. The boots did it!"—London Spectator.

Sun Dogs.

A parhelion is an attendant image, more or less distinct, of the sun's disk, which may appear with any halo at one, two, or more points near the sun, in which case it is called a parhelion.

The largest trees known are probably a cupressus arborescens, or "pepper-mint tree," growing in Dandridge, Tenn., said to measure 170 feet to the starting point of the crown, and 117 feet to the top, and another specimen of the same kind, mentioned by Baron Rottschill, was said to measure 140 feet.

AN ANCIENT CORNER STONE

Informally Removed from the Old Masonic Building this (Thursday) Forenoon.

The Contents of the Cavity and Historical Notes.

An event of considerable interest to the members of the Masonic fraternity took place this forenoon at a few minutes before nine o'clock. It was the informal removal of the old corner stone that was laid in the northeast corner of the old Masonic building north of the city park, which has long since been used by John Strohm, Strohm & Radcliff, and W. H. Grindol and others as a marble shop. The old brick building, which was built in 1842, has an ancient appearance, and its site will in the course of a few years be adorned by a handsome modern structure by the Messrs. Haworth, who purchased the property from the Masonic order for $14,000.

Naturally the removal of the stone attracted quite a number of Masons and curious spectators. The Masons present were: John Hatfield, D. C. Shockley, J. M. Leary, H. E. Foster, W. H. Grindol, J. R. Gorin and J. S. Post. The last two named gentlemen being present last time the stone was laid on June 24, 1842, forty years and 26 days ago. The other spectators were Messrs. M. B. Patterson, the architect of the new Masonic building, John Ulrich, John Baldwin, John Giblin, a Representative and several other gentlemen.

THE STONE was removed from its long resting place above the surface of the ground under the direction of Mr. Grindol. It is of limestone and weighs about 500 pounds. It is 20 inches in length, 17 inches wide and 14 inches thick. On the side which was exposed to the east was the following inscription: "JUNE 24, 1842," and on the north end the symbols of the order, the compass and square.

The stone was taken into Mr. Grindol's marble shop and placed on a truck. Then followed the opening of the small receptacle in the center of the stone, which was protected by a small marble slab, 12 inches long, 7 inches wide and two inches thick, fastened into the top of the opening with cement. While Mr. Grindol picked out the cement with a thin chisel, the Masons and curious spectators gathered around closer and closer, and were manifestly impatient to witness what would be revealed on the removal of the covering. Finally the lid was taken off, disclosing a cavity the lid was 7 inches long and 5 inches deep. All that could be seen in the bottom, at first glance, was a mass of dark stuff that looked like burnt paper that had been chipped. The hands of Mr. Bright and Mr. Grindol were inserted into the receptacle and forth came life of monthly paper, a copper plate, several coins covered with white mould, the remains of two old newspapers, a few torn scraps of manuscript and only the dampened half of the cover of an old bible, all that was left of the book that was placed in the corner-stone by the late Charles Pringle.

The articles named had not been placed in a lead or any other sort of receptacle, but had evidently been laid in the bottom of the hole and simply covered with the copper plate referred to.

Engraved on one side of the copper plate, in plain, script letters, are these words:
